About the Artists:

The Ariel String Quartet members hale from Germany, Russia, and Israel - but have played together since 1998. Formed in Israel, they came to the U.S. four years later to complete their professional studies at the New England Conservatory. Now based at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, as Artist/Faculty, they continue to pursue an international touring career. Their performance at the Columbus Museum of Art follows a series of concerts in prominent museums in this country and abroad, including the Louvre in Paris, Kaisersaal in Frankfurt, and the Corcoran and National Galleries in Washington. The Ariel String Quartet has garnered prizes in prestigious competitions including Canada’s Banff, Austria’s Franz Schubert, this country’s Fischhoff, where they were awarded the Grand Prize. They have been named Barnett Fellows by the A. N. and Pearl G. Barnett Family Foundation.
