The Ohio State University
School of Music
Lecturer Position in Choral Music Education

Choral Music Education Lecturer – a three year appointment
Teach undergraduate methods courses and graduate courses in choral music education and other areas consistent with candidate’s expertise; engage in leadership and mentorship for undergraduate and graduate students in choral music education; supervise student teachers and early field experience as needed; possibility of conducting a university choral ensemble.

Desired Qualifications: Masters degree in music education with choral emphasis required; PhD in music education with choral emphasis preferred.

Application Materials: Cover letter of application; updated CV; name and contact information for three professional references.
Additional materials may be requested at a later date.

Application review will begin March 6, 2019. Applications after that date will continue to be considered until the position is filled.

Send materials via e-mail attachment to: fulton.82@osu.edu
Savenda Fulton, School of Music, Ohio State University